Helping your charity's budget go further (new)

I'm unsure if you've heard of Upstream, a local social enterprise helping charities find better value on everyday expenses (such as cleaning, insurance, power and other services).

Who they know and what they know has become a valuable resource for charities, helping identify savings and better supplier matches so more of their budget can go towards their mission.

We thought their short Impact Review could be worthwhile for your organisation. It helps their team understand your spending and identify opportunities within their supplier network.

Complete the Upstream Impact Review

Where you choose to use an Upstream supplier, your purchasing can also generate local support for children and young people of Christchurch, so it's certainly a win-win.
